WILL STAY IN JAIL.

Mrs. Chadwick's Lawyers Deem It Not Advisable to Get Bail.

Should She Be Held For the Federal Grand Jury One of the Greatest Legal Battles Will Follow.

New York, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick Thursday night occupied one of the scantily furnished cells in the Toms. After a fruitless search all day for $15,000 bail, her attorneys gave up the fight Thursday night, and Philip Carpenter, her chief counsel, stood in the corridor of the Federal building at 9 o'clock when United States Marshal Henkel threw open the double doors of his office and led the woman out on the way to prison.

To add to her cup of woe, it was learned Thursday night that a charge of forgery would very likely be made against the woman in Ohio, based on the Carnegie notes and other papers given as securities for loans.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 9.—County Prosecuting Attorney Keeler received this message, signed "Andrew Carnegie," Thursday:

"Never signed such notes. Have no notes out. Have not issued a note in many years. Hope you can arrange to execute affidavit here."

San Francisco, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Alice M. York, who resides at 1030 Geary street, claims to be Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick's sister, and she states that Mrs. Chadwick is identical with Miss Devere, who served a term in the Ohio penitentiary for forgery. Mrs. York, who is a widow with two daughters, came here 18 months ago from Cleveland.

New York, Dec. 10.—After a day full of disagreement with her counsel as to whether she should waive examination and go to Cleveland, Mrs. Chadwick finally consented to remain another night in the Toms, but expressed the hope that she might leave there Saturday.

He also declined to discuss the report from Cleveland to the effect that the securities which have been held by Iri Reynolds for Mrs. Chadwick were valueless. Mr. Carpenter was asked to make a statement regarding the nature of the securities in view of the fact that the report said that while their face value was $5,000,000, the actual value was nothing. He was also asked to explain the method by which his clients had accepted Mr. Reynolds and others to induce the alleged worthless papers at their face value. His only reply was, "I have absolutely nothing whatever to say in regard to the matter."

Cleveland, O., Dec. 10.—After hearing two witnesses in the Chadwick case the grand jury adjourned Friday afternoon until Monday morning. The witnesses Friday were L. T. Whitney, a director, and A. B. Spear, cashier of the Citizens' National bank of Oberlin. At the end of the hearing Prosecutor Keeler said the testimony gave him jurisdiction in the alleged forgery case because the notes were negotiated in this county. Friday's hearing was brief because of the non-appearance of witnesses, the most important of which was C. T. Beckwith, president of the Citizens' National bank, who was unable to be present because of illness. Prosecutor Keeler hopes that he will be able to appear Monday. Another important witness expected Monday is Receiver Lyon, of the Oberlin bank.

New York, Dec. 12.—From present indications it is extremely unlikely that any attempt will be made to obtain bail for Mrs. Chadwick, who has been in the Toms since last Thursday night, on a charge of aiding and abetting bank officials in the embezzlement of $12,500. She was held under $15,000 bail. A person, who is in a position to know the various moves in the Chadwick case, in an interview said, Sunday:

"Despite all reports to the contrary, no active efforts have been made to obtain bail for Mrs. Chadwick in this city. There are plenty of people here who would sign her bond if asked, but the fact is, it is not deemed advisable for Mrs. Chadwick to leave the city prison at present. If she were released on bail the government could demand 24 hours in which to examine her surety. Meanwhile the government attorneys could telegraph the Cleveland authorities and before the 24 hours had expired could have additional charges sent here, so that it would be necessary to procure new bail."

"This procedure could be carried out as long as the government officials thought they had charges. Again, there might come a conflict in authority. A county grand jury might find an indictment against Mrs. Chadwick and then the matter of extradition would come up in a different light from any yet suggested."

Cleveland, O., Dec. 12.—According to the most accurate estimate of the estate of Mrs. Chadwick that is possible, before the receiver has investigated her assets and reported his findings to the court, her creditors as a whole will receive about one and one-half mills on the dollar. What lends additional interest to this showing, from the creditors' standpoint, is that one man, Iri Reynolds, will receive the whole of the assets visible at the present time. There may be funds in reserve somewhere, as there may be additional creditors who have not yet announced that Mrs. Chadwick is indebted to them, but it is not expected by bankers and attorneys of this city, who have the greatest knowledge of her affairs that any more large loans will be developed.

The extent of her operations is now believed to be approximately as follows:

Secured from Citizens' National bank of Oberlin, and various sources in and about Lorain county, Ohio, $500,000.

Borrowed from Herbert D. Newton, $190,000.

Borrowed from business men in Pittsburgh, $500,000.

Total, $1,190,000.

Against this stands security of known value on one note amounting to $1,500, which is held by Iri Reynolds.

The amount of money received by Mrs. Chadwick in Pittsburgh may run as high as $800,000, but it is believed that a portion of this sum is a bonus promised by her for an original loan of at least $500,000. Her creditor there figures that she is indebted to him for the larger amount, while she has admitted that she owes $500,000.

Secretary Iri Reynolds, of the Wade Park bank, declared Sunday night that his implicit belief in the statements made to him by Mrs. Chadwick in which she declared herself to be the daughter of Andrew Carnegie, was the impelling cause of his financial dealing with her.

"She told me," said Mr. Reynolds, "that she was the illegitimate daughter of Andrew Carnegie, and I believed her. I never doubted her story until on the occasion of my last visit to New York, when Mr. Squire came to me and declared that all the securities she had given me as the notes of Andrew Carnegie were worthless. It was only then that I doubted her. Before that I had refused to say anything about her or her affairs because I deemed it my duty to protect her in the story of her birth as she had given it to me."

Miss Daisy Letter to Wed. Chicago, Dec. 12.—The engagement of Miss Daisy Letter, sister of Lady Curzon, to the Earl of Suffolk and Berkshire, of England, was announced Sunday night by Mrs. Letter from their family residence in this city.

THE POST OFFICE.

Annual Report of Postmaster General Robert J. Wynne.

Economy and Strict Accountability Have Been Enforced in All Branches of the Service, Says the Report.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The annual report of Postmaster General Robert J. Wynne was made public Sunday. It records a year of most successful administration.

Postal revenues have increased. Salutory changes in the classification of the mails have been carried out greatly to the benefit of the service. Amendments to regulations facilitating the handling of mercantile packages in bulk have been put into effect. At home and abroad postal facilities have been extended. Exchange of money orders with foreign countries has been simplified and cheapened. Parcels-post conventions were extended to European countries as an experiment with Germany five years ago. They have been extended to Japan and the British colony of Hong-Kong to meet changes of trade conditions in the far east; also to Norway.

Economy and strict accountability have been enforced in all branches of the service. While the so-called deficit of $8,779,492—that is to say, the excess of expenditures over receipts—is greater by $4,219,447 than for the fiscal year 1903, it must be borne in mind that the expenditure authorized for the extension and maintenance of the rural free delivery service during the past fiscal year was $4,902,237 greater than the preceding year.

For facility of reference the chief recommendations contained in this report requiring action of congress to give them effect are here summarized:

That proper legislation be enacted to acquire the title of block No. 324 in the city of Washington, for the purpose of erecting an annex to the post office department building.

An amendment to existing law so as to provide for the termination of official bonds of post office officials.

That third and fourth class mail matter be consolidated at the rate of postage now paid on third class mail matter—1 cent for each 2 ounces.

That consideration be given to the recommendation that congress fix a rate of 3 cents per pound, or any fractional part thereof, on packages not exceeding 5 pounds mailed at the distributing post office of any rural free delivery route for delivery to a patron on said route. This to apply only to packages deposited at the local post office for delivery to patrons on routes emanating from that office, and not to mail transmitted from one office to another.

That the inter-state commerce law be amended to prohibit telegraph and express companies, or any of their employees, from aiding and abetting in the green-goods or lottery swindles or any other scheme carried on partly by mail and partly by common carrier, in violation of the postal laws.

That the office of the assistant attorney general for the post office department be made presidential, and the salary attached thereto increased to $5,000 per annum.

That the appropriation of $5,000, provided for the publication of the opinions of the assistant attorney general for the post office department, be increased to $15,000.

That congress consider the propriety of granting an annuity to railway post office clerks who are permanently disabled in the line of duty.

To provide penalties for the sending of dangerous or destructive objects or matter in the mails.

That penalty be provided for the use of counterfeit postmarking stamps for the improper certification of pension vouchers or for any other purpose.

That the establishment or maintenance of private letter boxes without authorization of the post office department be prohibited.

THE LATE ELECTION.

Roosevelt Pooled Largest Vote Ever Given For a President.

New York, Dec. 12.—A canvass by the New York Times of the popular vote at the last presidential election is complete except as to one county in Tennessee and four counties in Michigan, for which estimates are given, shows that President Roosevelt defeated Judge Parker by 2,346,169. He polled the largest vote ever given for a president of the United States, 7,640,560. This is more than 400,000 in excess of the vote cast for McKinley in 1900.

The total vote is given as 13,534,119 and that for each of the presidential candidates is given as follows: Roosevelt, rep., 7,640,560; Parker, dem., 5,094,391; Debs, soc., 392,857; Swallow, pro., 248,411; Watson, pop., 124,381; Corrigan, S. L., 33,519.

The electoral vote will be 336 for Roosevelt and 140 for Parker.

Killed By His Son.

Adam Jouett, living near Robinson Station, nine miles from Cynthiana, was shot and instantly killed by his son, Joseph Jouett, Sunday afternoon. After the killing young Jouett walked the entire distance to Cynthiana and gave himself up to Judge Lail, to whom he stated that his father first knocked him down with a chair and then beat him almost into insensibility, leaving him lying on the floor. He told the young man he was going to the workshop, get his gun and come back and finish the job. Young Jouett, fearing his father, ran upstairs, secured a shotgun and started back to protect himself, and, on opening the door, saw his father approaching with the gun in his hand. Young Jouett fired one barrel of the gun, the entire charge taking effect, producing almost instant death.

Young Jouett was almost frozen when he reached Cynthiana, and was in a battered condition about the head and face. He was sent to the home of relatives, where medical aid was summoned, as he is thought to be seriously injured. He is 27 years old and had recently returned from the Philippines, after services in the regular army. Adam Jouett, the dead man, bore the reputation of being dangerous. He shot and killed a young man named Colbin, seven years ago, for trespassing on his farm. Feeling was so strong against him then in Harrison county that a change of venue was granted to Pendleton county, where he was sent to the penitentiary for two years.

The deceased was the father of Mrs. Frank Laughlin and Mrs. Geo. Laughlin, of this city.

Paris Boy In Trouble.

Hensel Margolin, of this city, is in trouble in Cincinnati for passing a lot of bogus checks. He did an extensive business for several days in buying fruit, horses, &c., and then reselling them for the cash. He is the wayward son of Mr. H. Margolin, one of our most honored and respected citizens, and has caused his father much trouble heretofore.

NICE BACON.—We have a lot of nice home sugar-cured breakfast bacon, hickory smoked.

NEW STOCK.—Just received fresh lot of open-kettle New Orleans Molasses.
13-14 WM. SAUER.

A Correction.

Through some unaccountable agency it seemingly having become current from the frequent enquiries made, that Dr. Robert Granger, of High Street, is of the Osteopathic School of Practice, he desires, in order to avoid any future embarrassment, both on the part of the enquiring patient and himself, publicly to state that he is not. He is of the Allopathic or Regular School, being a graduate of The Cincinnati College of Medicine and Surgery and of The New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, New York City; also of The Mothers' and Babies' Hospital, New York City.

Not So Bad As Represented.

The sensational article in the Lexington Democrat of Sunday stating that "Paris was almost in a state of riot and verging on mob law," is false from start to finish. There were several little personal encounters last week, brought on by too much booze, but so far as the town verging on mob law was all rot.

The most sensational encounters and the ones that caused most of the talk was that of Desha Lucas striking and severely bruising the face of Sherman Stivers and also attacking W. A. Thomason one of the grand jurors who helped to indict several of Lucas' friends. It is said that in both instances Lucas was in the fault.

Our city is as quiet and peaceable as any in the State of Kentucky, and if the Democrat will only publish all of the sensational things that happen almost daily in Lexington, the city of churches and Law and Order Leagues, it can fill its columns with sensational reading, without publishing such false reports in regard to Paris.

MUFFLERS AND TIES.—Call and look over our large line of mufflers and ties. You are bound to find what you want.

Right You Are, Old Boy.

The following is from the Cynthiana Democrat, and Jimmie, you are right, give 'em h—l:

"A number of person from Cynthiana went to Paris, Wednesday evening, to see 'The Burgomaster' at the opera house. The Burgomaster was there with a jolly support, but what kind of a performance he gave was difficult to say. The Paris electric lights took charge of the entertainment and went out more frequently than any man in the audience. While the pretty girls were trying to sing of the moonlight, the electric lights were giving realistic sudden-change performances of 'From Daylight to Midnight.' They were such pronounced in-and-outers that they would have been ruled off any race track in America. To heighten the climax, in the grand finale, when everybody was supposed to be on the stage and the curtain should have been lowered in a blaze of glory, every light in the house was out and nobody knows exactly when the whole thing ended. Those who paid $1.50 to 'see' the show have several looks coming."

Did As We Advised.

On Thursday evening, the City Council, anticipating the notice and advice that would appear in the News next morning in regard to Main street, refused to accept the street and pay any more money on same until it was made satisfactory. This was done after the report of Councilman O'Brien, chairman of the Improvement Committee, had been accepted by the Council. The report is lengthy and called attention to all the defects in the new street. The contractors will not receive the balance of their pay until the recommendations in Mr. O'Brien's report is complied with, and they will not be allowed to do any work on the street until spring.

In the meantime, the city is fully protected as in addition to $10,000 still due the contractors, there are two bonds, one of $5,000 guaranteeing the carrying out of contract and one of $4,000 on the repairs. The city is perfectly safe and we will be out of the mud this winter whatever happens.

HOLIDAY FRUITS.—Mr. Alex. Baird, of the firm of Baird & Taylor, is in Cincinnati to-day selecting all kinds of fruits for the holiday trade in Paris. This is a guarantee that if you buy your fruit from this firm you will get the best.

Circuit Court.

In our last issue we gave all that had been done in Circuit Court up to that time. Court adjourned Friday until 9 o'clock this morning. The only indictment of importance, among a number, brought in before the grand jury finally adjourned, was that against Wm. N. Clarke, charged with the murder of J. W. Burden, near Millersburg, several weeks ago. Clarke had been acquitted at two examining trials. He is now in jail awaiting trial at this term. There are a number of criminal cases set for trial to-day.

Jewish Service.

A large crowd attended the Jewish services held at the Christian Church, this city, on Friday evening, although the weather was very inclement. Rabbi Goldenson, of Lexington, conducted the services, which were very impressive throughout. The Rabbi's address, on "The Religious Life," was very instructive, showing him to be a young scholar of fine mind. He possesses a good voice and graceful manners. The singing was unusually fine, especially the solo of Mrs. Lee Rice and the duet of Mrs. Fannie Bell Sutherland and Miss Flora Hill.

ODE TO A FLY.

You harbinger of everything tormenting,
You horrid little aggravating fly,
While I looked forward gladly to the summer
I forgot that you, provoking creature, would be by.

I raved about the coming of the flowers,
And tried to feel poetic 'bout the Spring;
But here are you with all your teasing powers,
And all my fancies into air take wing.

To-day I tried to sleep at early morn,
But you and all your brothers shun repose.
And while I chased "your sisters and your aunts,"
You, loudly buzzing, sat upon my nose!

In vain I lay upon the table sweets
You lightly slip, your "weather eye" on me,
And with a cruel malice all your own,
You knock your youngest son into my tea.

I try to lie as still as any mouse,
But, gloating in your power of torture rare,
You loudly sing your scorn of helpless man,
And take a walk with friends amid my hair.

I'm weak with flying at you round the room,
Ah, now! once more you're standing on my nose,
Just for one blow! Ah! there you're off again,
And half your harem nibbling at my toes!

There is no way to catch you that I know,
And lo! a theme to make even angels weep,
That I in all my pride of strength and power
Can't smother you and get a little sleep!

CHAPTER XIV.

GRAFTON TO THE RESCUE.

ATTENDED by his captors, Denis de Vitre, in the hateful uniform of the English army, stood bound and facing the governor and his staff in the great hall of the castle. The sunlight sparkled in through the long, narrow lancet windows with their leaded, diamond-shaped panes, and made strange traceries upon the polished oak floor. Pictures of the former governors of New France looked down upon the little scene from the walls. There was the dauntless Champlain, the veteran La Barre, the courtly du Quesne, and, conspicuous among the rest, the grim, eagle-like figure of the greatest of all—old Frontenac. The history of the province was somehow summed up in that old vaulted chamber, and de Vitre felt as if he were on trial before the heroism of the past as well as the disorganization of the present.

"Monsieur de Vitre, you are accused of having betrayed your country by piloting the English ships up the river," began the governor.

"And who is my accuser, Monsieur de Ramesay?" answered de Vitre, boldly.

"Common report."

"And does common report, sir, outweigh the word of honor of an officer and a gentleman?"

"Do you deny the charge, monsieur?"

"Sir, upon my word of honor, I declare it to be false in every particular!"

"But, sir, you were seen, recognized by officers stationed on Cap-Tourmente, on the forward part of the first English ship to pass the promontory. There was a group of English officers around you. You seemed to be pointing—is it no so, Maj. St. Luc?"

"It is indeed true, sir. I saw Monsieur de Vitre myself," answered the officer, promptly.

"If Monsieur St. Luc had seen me one-half hour sooner he would have noticed me standing on the rail of the ship with a rope around my neck, about to be hanged as a common felon for refusing to show the way to the English."

"Can this be true, sir?" asked the governor in surprise.

"On my faith it is. I give you my word, sir."

"We don't accept the word of a man accused of treachery, sir. Although I have no doubt you were on the rail, as you say, yet I have also no doubt but that the presence of the rope proved efficacious."

"Mon Dieu, what an infamous charge!" cried de Vitre, white with rage and passion at this insult, striving to break away from his guards. The governor watched him coolly until he ceased to struggle; then, nonchalantly taking a pinch of snuff:

"Be calm, monsieur," he added. "I might have taken your word, but there is another circumstance which must be explained, and which makes it difficult to credit your story. The dress you wear—it is an English coat."

"May it please Monsieur le Gouverneur," spoke up the sergeant, "I saw him in the front rank of the English as they charged us. He carried a musket in his hand."

"That is true," answered de Vitre, "I was there."

"Did you discharge the musket?"

"Yes, Monsieur le Chevalier—that is, I had done so."

"At the troops of France?"

"Yes, but—"

A roar of rage swept through the hall as the men heard this damning admission.

"Why hear any more, Monsieur le Chevalier?" burst out Capt. Rouvigny, voicing the thought of the others. "If he be not a self-confessed traitor, let him be shot as a deserter."

"Messieurs, you must hear me! You shall!" exclaimed de Vitre. "I have been a prisoner in the English fleet. Through the connivance of a soldier in their marine I procured this uniform. I escaped from the ship last night. I hoped to reach the town and warn you and Monsieur de Montcalm of the expected attack on the town before morning, but I found it impossible to get away. I was compelled to stay in the ranks, and with difficulty escaped detection. I posed as a renegade or I would have been killed out of hand. My gun was not loaded with ball. I looked carefully to that, gentlemen. I swear to you I threw it away at the first moment and ran to join my friends. As there is a God in Heaven, Monsieur le Chevalier, I speak the truth! I beg you to hold me until you can communicate with the English and verify my statement."

"We cannot hold the town a week, Monsieur de Vitre," returned the governor quickly. "And to defer your punishment until the English take up would mean to let you escape scot-free. Frankly, I do not believe your story. What say you, gentlemen?"

"No, no, he is a traitor! Away with him!" cried one and another.

"Gentlemen, if I ever escape from this predicament," answered de Vitre boldly, "rest assured that you shall answer to me for your words and actions!"

"This is idle talk, monsieur," said the governor severely; "as the commandant of the garrison I shall order you to be shot at once, upon your own admissions, which you have failed to explain to our satisfaction, if there is no one here who will protest, or say a word in your defence."

"I will do that, Monsieur le Chevalier!" a clear voice cried out from the other end of the hall, as Anne de Rohan, followed by Josette, entered the door and advanced before the chevalier.

"Mademoiselle de Rohan!" exclaimed the governor in great surprise, rising to his feet the while, and bowing profoundly before her, a movement which of course, was emulated by all the officers. "Here is no place for ladies."

"I am a witness in the case, Monsieur de Ramesay. Am I in time to save the life and honor of a brave man?"

"Time serves you, mademoiselle, but otherwise your effort is impossible. Monsieur de Vitre was seen this morning in the English ranks in their uniform—indeed he has it on now. He bore arms against us in the field. He admits it. He is believed to have acted as pilot for the English ships."

"'Tis false, sir!" interrupted the girl.

"Thank God for that word, mademoiselle!" cried de Vitre. "If you believe in me I can face the rest of the world undaunted."

"Silence, Monsieur de Vitre!—Why say you this, mademoiselle?" asked the governor.

"Because there is an English officer wounded and a prisoner in my house, who has learned by chance of Monsieur de Vitre's predicament and who vows that he is innocent; that he did not pilot the ships; that he refused to do so even at the peril of his life, and that he had been held a close prisoner on the English ships since his capture."

"Dr. Arnoux dressed the young Englishman's wounds. He is a captain in the English navy. When he recovered consciousness I mentioned Monsieur de Vitre's predicament, and he insisted that I must come to tell you this story, and if you doubted it I was to ask you to send an officer to question him."

"Why came he not himself, then?"

"He is too severely wounded, sir, and the doctor forbade him to move."

"Be seated, mademoiselle. Let us withdraw, gentlemen, and consider this communication for a moment," said the governor, after reflecting deeply for a short time.

The Chevalier de Ramesay and his officers stepped to the other end of the apartment and intently consulted together, leaving Anne standing near de Vitre and his guards.

"O mademoiselle," cried de Vitre to her, addressing her despite the presence of the soldiers, "this is a public place in which to address you, but I stand in the shadow of death and I must needs take any opportunity which fate provides me. You have long known of my devotion to you. I have not disguised it nor do I wish to make further protestations to you. I only want to thank you, as a man dying, for the brave stand you have taken in attempting to save not only my life, but what is dearer to me—my honor. Thank Capt. Grafton, too, for his good words, though I feel they will be useless. The evidence against me is strong. This cursed uniform is the last straw. Ranking under the defeat of the morning, and with the certainty of surrender before them, they are too bitter to weigh well what they are doing. They want a scapegoat, and here is one ready to hand. Mademoiselle, one last favor. It means but little perhaps to you but much to me. I cannot go to you. Will you not reach hither your hand?"

"They must not kill you, Monsieur de Vitre! 'Tis most unjust!" cried the girl piteously, stepping over to him. "As for my hand—" She stretched it out, and though he was bound and tied, nothing could have exceeded the courtly grace with which he bent over it and pressed a long kiss upon it. She held it tightly against his lips.

"There is my hand, monsieur!" she exclaimed, as the soldiers withdrew a little, out of consideration for her evident grief. "I would that my heart went with it."

"Monsieur de Vitre, mademoiselle," said the governor, returning to his seat, "we have carefully considered the testimony of Mademoiselle de Rohan and are of the opinion that it is not sufficiently important to cause us to delay the execution. I fear that a few days may see the English in possession of the town, and that, of course, means that you, sir, would escape all punishment. As for the testimony of the English officer, he is in honor bound to extricate his ally from his predicament, and we question—"

"Who questions the word of Capt. Philip Grafton?" cried a stern voice, as a strangely ill-assorted pair entered the hall. One of the two was a small slender man, only partially clothed, whose face was ghastly pale and who held his left hand pressed against his right shoulder. He would have fallen to the floor but that he was supported by the encircling arm of a huge old man in the livery of the Rohans. The two were Philip and Jean-Renaud.

"Grafton!" cried de Vitre. "Thank God, you have come!"

"Jean-Renaud," exclaimed Anne, "how dared you to bring this gentleman here! Against the doctor's orders and mine! His life—"

"Peace, mademoiselle!" interrupted Grafton. "I came here because I feared what has happened, that they would not accept your testimony. Your servant but obeyed my orders, he had no choice!"

PRESSED A LONG KISS UPON IT.

"But your life, monsieur!" said Anne.

"I peril it gladly to save the honor of a brave gentleman, though an enemy. Monsieur le Gouverneur, you are about to execute this gentleman?"

There was a dead silence in the room.

"It is true," answered Mademoiselle de Rohan.

"It must not go on!" cried Grafton. "I swear to you on my honor as an English gentleman that Monsieur de Vitre is innocent! He is no traitor; on the contrary, he deserves your highest commendation. He refused to pilot the ships in, even though, by the orders of the admiral, he was placed on the rail of the ship with a rope flung around his neck, and men awaited the signal to hang him."

Murmurs rose from the officers in the hall.

"Why was he not hanged, then, Sir Englishman?" asked the governor.

"Because an English officer interfered, one who hated to see a brave man sacrificed, and through his influence the general, who was his friend, and the admiral, who is his captain, he saved Monsieur de Vitre's life."

"Do you know this to be a fact, monsieur?"

"I do, monsieur."

"Who was the officer that saved his life?"

"I."

The truth in the answer was patent in every line of the blood-stained figure. There was a burst of applause from the officers in the room as his words carried conviction to their hearts.

"Who piloted the ships, then?"

"Some fishermen, and some of us came up the river without a pilot."

"But this uniform?"

"I have no doubt that Monsieur de Vitre can explain that. I know that last night he was held a close prisoner on the Sutherland."

"Monsieur, forgive the question. I wish to be quite certain. You are not saying this to save an ally?"

"Sir, I have given you my word of honor, the word of an officer of the King. As God is my judge, I have told the truth! Hold Monsieur de Vitre until you can communicate with Admiral Saunders or Gen. Townshend. Send out a special flag now, and if the facts be not as I have stated I will answer for them with my own life. You hold me prisoner, sir. I am alone in your power. I would stake anything upon de Vitre's honor. Indeed—he turned pale and caught at his breast again where the red stains showed under his hand—"I believe that I have staked my life—for—"

He stopped, his glance wavered toward Anne.

"For you—your lover—mademoiselle!"

He swayed back and forth and fell heavily to the floor at her feet.

"Release Monsieur de Vitre!" cried de Ramesay.

Anne de Rohan instantly sank to the floor and knelt by the prostrate form of the English captain.

"Ah, mon Dieu!" she cried. "He is dying!"

There was a look on her face, in her eyes, for which de Vitre would have given all he possessed. As the soldiers unbound him, he sprang to her side.

"You love him!" he cried. "You love him!"

CHAPTER XV.

"THOU SHALT NOT COVET."

ANNE DE ROHAN had admitted to herself as she had watched Grafton before he recovered consciousness that she loved him. If there had been any doubt in her mind of the permanence of her feelings of bygone days and their development from the childish devotion to the deep passionate love which filled her soul, the tell-tale kiss she had pressed upon his forehead when she thought him dying would have undeceived her. And she realized it more entirely at that moment when she saw him lying white and still at her feet in the hall. That something of her feeling had expressed itself in her looks she did not doubt.

"And those words, monsieur?" But it is one thing to admit a fact in the secret recesses of one's own consciousness, or even to look one's feelings, and another to have it proclaimed on the housetops. She bitterly resented de Vitre's impulsive allegation, and that it was true but enhanced her indignation against him and against herself. How could she, a de Rohan, love this commoner of America? How could she, a French woman, bestow her affection upon an enemy? How could she give her heart to a man who wore another woman's picture above his own? Everything stood in the way of any future relationship whatever between them.

And yet how magnificently he had come to the rescue of de Vitre! How nobly he had stood forth in the hall a moment since! O God, it was true! She had betrayed herself; the world would know that she had given away her love to this English officer—an enemy. She felt and saw the pointing fingers of her society; she heard the words "Traitor! Traitor!" in the air. She would not, she could not!

Yet, how he had looked at her when he clutched her dress with that fevered question, "Are you in love with Monsieur de Vitre?" She was afraid of herself. If he should recognize her and plead with her could she resist him? No, she feared not, she was sure she could not. She loved him too well to do so. Of that point she was absolutely certain, and of another fact consequent upon the first, as well. She did not love Denis de Vitre. She admired him—but love, no. And yet here was a safeguard. Bethrothed to him she could better struggle against the pleadings of her heart. She did not yet realize what her long dormant feelings toward Philip would be, or how powerful a hold he was to have upon her.

"Monsieur de Vitre," she exclaimed, clearly enough to be heard by all the room, "you forget yourself! How could I love this stranger, an enemy of France? You are not yourself; these trials have bewildered you, and I have but one answer to your charge. You have asked me again and again to—to—in short, monsieur, are you still—"

"Mademoiselle de Rohan!" cried de Vitre, clasping her hand, "is it—will you—"

"Monsieur, I esteem you. I regard you, I admire you. I am willing, with the consent of my grandfather the marquis—to be—"

"Monsieur de Ramesay," cried de Vitre, turning to the little group, who had been regarding the couple intently, "Mademoiselle de Rohan makes me the happiest of men! She deigns to honor me by promising me her hand."

"Look to your English friend, Monsieur de Vitre," promptly answered the governor, "and quickly!"

"Maledictions upon me!" cried de Vitre, kneeling beside the two servants.

"A surgeon, quick!"

TOOK NO CHANCE.

Phelim Casey was engaged on the ridge pole of Squire Pond's house when he lost his footing, and slid down to the edge of the roof. His legs were down but he clutched the eaves-trough and hung for dear life.

"That's right, Phelim!" called the squire, who had seen him slip. "You hang on a minute till I can get a ladder up there."

But even as he spoke Phelim relaxed his hold and dropped to the ground.

As soon as the squire made sure that no bones were broken, and that Phelim was simply bruised here and there and shaken up, he began to berate the man in vigorous language.

"Why in the world didn't you hang on, as I told you to, you great stupid?" he demanded. "I'd have been there in a minute."

"Maybe you wud," said Phelim, sullenly, "but how did I know but the eaves would give way before you got there?"—Youth's Companion.

PETER, A WILD BOY.

This celebrity was a savage creature, found in the forest of Hertswood, electorate of Hanover, when George I. and his friends were hunting. He was found walking on his hands and feet, climbing trees like a squirrel, and feeding on grass and moss, November, 1723. At the time he was supposed to be about 13 years of age. The king caused him to taste of all the dishes at the royal table, but he preferred wild plants, leaves and the bark of trees which he had lived on from his infancy. No humane efforts of the many philosophic persons about the court could entirely vary his savage habits or cause him to utter a distinct syllable. He died in 1735, at the age of 73.—London Mail.

HIS LIMIT.

Burke was once annoyed by the repeated interruptions of a member who occupied a position in the royal household, and who called upon Burke to remember his duty as a subject of the king. "I am perfectly ready to honor the king," said Burke, "but not constrained, therefore, to honor the king's man-servant, his maid-servant, his and—fixing his eyes on the member—his ass."—London Tit-Bits.

BY WAY OF ILLUSTRATION.

Man of Learning Shows Ordinary Person the Knack in Load Lifting.

The commission man and the electrical engineer were walking east in Monroe street. A slender workman with a huge sack of cement on his shoulder crossed their path, relates the Chicago Daily News.

"Just look at that little chap," said the commission man. "He must be a Sadow in miniature."

"Not so strong as you think," objected the engineer. "I have seen skilled workmen lift loads of almost incredible weight and they were not particularly muscular. It's all a knack. They have little tricks of the trade which they employ, most of it on the balancing order. If you notice, you will observe that if a person does the same thing many times he will learn to do things easily, even to lifting and carrying weights. Now, here is a case in point. Do you see that pile of boards there on the curb? That Italian woman is getting firewood from the scraps and bits across the street. She has, I venture to say, all of a hundred pounds of wood in that pile. She will put that on her head and walk away with it, carrying a bigger load than you or I can lift. Just wait here a minute and you will see how easily she does the trick."

The two stopped beside the boards and just as they were about to look another man did the same. Soon another man and a boy joined the group and before the woman had returned with more salvage quite a crowd of curious people stood around her plunder.

In nowise disconcerted with her sudden rise in popularity, the woman plodded across the street. Lifting up one end of the pile, she slipped a piece of rope under and looped it around the boards. The other end she fastened in like manner. Then she drew from under her skirt a turbaned cushion which she placed firmly on her head.

The engineer pulled his friend forward. "Now, watch her tackle that," he whispered, eagerly.

The woman, a spare, lean creature, moved toward the place where the engineer stood. She gave him a friendly smile which showed yellow teeth far back. Quickly lifting up one end of the pile of boards, she turned to him and with peremptory suddenness said: "Here you, hold here."

Before he knew what he was doing the engineer found himself lifting up his end of the boards, while the woman, stooping, lifted up the other, getting under the pile at the same time, "hunching" her head forward until she had the boards poised on the turban.

"Leggo," she ordered and stalked off.

"Quite a knack," murmured the commission man. But the electrical engineer was so busy digging a splinter from the ball of his thumb that he failed to reply to the comment.

ENGLAND LIKES OUR WAYS.

Manufacturers Come Across the Sea to Learn the Systems in American Workshops.

In a recent report United States Consul Halstead, at Birmingham, England, thinks he is justified in saying that the British manufacturing industry is being rebuilt on American systems.

If an investigation could be made of the establishments in that country which are now working under American influence in one way or another the results would be surprising, Mr. Halstead opines. In the district covered by Consul Halstead he can name a great number of Americans who are at work in British shops and who are engaged in the introduction of American methods.

In a number of other cases the shops are presided over by young men who have been sent to the United States and there have absorbed the spirit and methods of the American establishments.

Then again, during the last few years there has been an army of visitors to the United States in the shape of delegations from associations of English manufacturers, all of whom have brought back some American notions, while yet reluctant to acknowledge the leadership of America in this respect.

Mr. Halstead cites a number of cases of the importation of American labor into that country, particularly in the iron trade, and in some of these cases the innovation was found to be such a desirable one that the men were the means of bringing others from the country around Pittsburgh.

The consul adds, however, "as a warning to any adventurous Americans who may think all the above promising, I may say that no American workmen appearing at even those works would be engaged. If Americans are wanted in any capacity in any English industry the employers prefer to select and import their own men."

PURIFYING WATER SUPPLY.

How One Town Worked a Seeming Miracle in the Cleansing of Its Reservoir.

Just at this time there came to Dr. Moore's special notice the troubles of a small town in Kentucky. At much expense, several years before, the town had built an elaborate water supply system, but it had continual difficulty with the water, says Gilbert H. Grosvenor, in "The Method of Purifying Water," in Century. On examining the reservoir, Dr. Moore found the water packed with anabaena organisms, as many as 7,000 filaments to the cubic centimeter. A colony of anabaena when enlarged several hundred times looks like a bracelet of small green stones with larger yellow stones set in at intervals. The water smelled like a pippen, and tasted to match, and was of a slimy, greenish color. The reservoir was not a large one, being of about 25,000,000 cubic gallons capacity—just what was wanted for the first test. As the algae were so dense, he decided to give the rather strong dose of 1 to 4,000,000. The experiment was made in July, 1903.

The only apparatus required was some coarse sacks and a rowboat. About 200 pounds of the blue vitriol were placed in the sacks and hung from the stern of the boat. Then the boat was rowed up and down, backward and forward across the reservoir for several hours, covering every part of the surface in order that the copper should be evenly distributed. The crystals were soon dissolved, and the party returned to the shore. Dr. Moore knew that the small amount of copper used was so thoroughly distributed that it could not make the water dangerous to drink; but would it be strong enough to destroy the foul-smelling plants in the water? At first the smell grew worse, but he was not particularly alarmed as he had expected that the commotion made in the water would break up many of the tiny sacs and liberate the oil. At the end of 24 hours the greenish color began to disappear; at the end of 48 hours the green was entirely gone and the surface was clear, but the water had a light-brown tinge due to the dead organisms held in suspension. At the end of the third day the water was clear, sweet and completely cured of the disagreeable smell and taste. Tests showed that there was not an anabaena left. To make sure that the copper had not poisoned the water, Dr. Moore tested it a few hours after the dose was applied and found no trace of the copper remaining.

It cost $12.50 to purify the reservoir, the only item of expense being the blue vitriol, which cost about 6 or 7 cents a pound. The town, which had been spending thousands of dollars each year ineffectually, has had no further trouble.

After this successful experiment, Dr. Moore attacked larger reservoirs, with equal success. In the fall of 1903 he sterilized a basin of 600,000,000 gallons in Massachusetts, formerly a part of the water supply system of Boston. At that time the water contained 10,000 organisms to the cubic centimeter. After the treatment he could not discover a single organism. This year only from 30 to 60 to the centimeter were found, and a very slight dose has killed these. The largest reservoir in the world can be treated in the same way. When a very large surface has to be covered, it is better to use several boats, or, perhaps, a small launch, in order that every part of the reservoir may be evenly treated. The treatment costs from 50 to 60 cents per million gallons. July is the best month to kill algae. The organisms are then, so to speak, most relaxed, as they have not yet formed their spores and hardened themselves for the winter. All algae are not equally sensitive to solution, so that the strength of the dose varies with the different species.

Strenuous King of England.

His majesty the king takes all the roles which devolve upon him in his capacity as monarch seriously and earnestly. On the one hand he has achieved more in the interests of concert and good will among his neighboring countries than it has fallen to the lot of many sovereigns even to attempt. His title of peacemaker is no outcome of court flattery, but a respectful and affectionate tribute to his subjects' admiration. The king, however, knows full well the wisdom of the old adage: "If you wish for peace, be prepared for war." Like his ever-lamented predecessor, who in her will expressed her wish to be buried as a soldier's daughter, the king has always taken the keenest interest in the army, not only as one of our twin branches of defense, but as a corporate body, the welfare of whose members is a matter of deep concern to him.—London Spectator.

Birds of the "Arabian Nights."

Readers of "The Thousand and One Nights" will remember the "islands of Wak-Wak," and the marvelous adventures of Hassan, of Balsaora, and the princess with the dress of feathers. Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace suggests that the islands were real, and that they can be identified with the Aru islands, the home of the great bird of paradise. The name "Wak-Wak," he thinks, may be an imitation of the call of the birds, and the story of Hassan's visit to the islands of Wak-Wak may be based on the actual adventures of some traveler who discovered the haunts of the birds of paradise.—Nature.

"Yes; but would you stay there?" asked the unfeeling girl.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

FAVORS WHIPPING POST.

Connecticut Official Advocates Its Introduction for Certain Criminals in His State.

A. M. Lewis, selectman of Southington, Conn., advocated at the annual session of the State Association of Selectmen and Boards of Charities the whipping of criminals. During his many years of service as selectman, he said, he had been convinced that there are men who are more brutal than human, and for whom jail or state prison is too good.

He realized, he said, that the whipping post was a harsh institution, but he knew that there were men for whom nothing was too cruel. He told of one man who laughed when sent to jail, and who, when asked what should be done with his children, laughed and said: "Oh, I don't care; kill them if you want to."

"I believe," said Mr. Lewis, "that the whipping post would just about fit such men as that, and I believe that it could be used in such a way that it would greatly reduce pauperism."

Several members said they believed whipping would be a good thing in certain cases. The whipping post will be advocated by Mr. Lewis before a committee of the legislature. There appears to be a sentiment all over the state for harsher measures for criminals, owing to the unusual outbreak of crime during the past two years in Connecticut.

OLD HISTORY IS REVEALED

Valuable Manuscripts Relating to the Early Colonial Times Discovered in England.

Dr. Charles Andrews, professor of history at Bryn Mawr college, recently returned to his home in Hartford, Conn., from England, where he has made some very valuable discoveries of manuscript in the record office there relating to the early history of this country. About $6,000 was appropriated recently by the Carnegie institute for research along this line, which was undertaken by Dr. Andrews. He said that matter was scattered about in different departments, but that there was an enormous amount of manuscript hidden away that dealt entirely with early colonial history here.

Dr. Andrews discovered in the colonial office alone about 2,000 to 2,500 volumes of manuscripts. The admiralty, treasury, war, home and foreign offices each had some. There was also important material in the courts of law relating to the charters, writs issued, etc.

Dr. Andrews confined himself in research to the period between 1606, the starting of the Virginia colony, and 1783, the treaty of Paris.

Long Drive to Visit Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wheeler, of Horton, Kan., are about to visit relatives in Iowa, but owing to the numerous railroad accidents refuse to go on the cars. Mr. Wheeler has purchased a span of good horses and a light wagon, and will drive to Iowa. When he travels in a wagon he always takes the precaution of stopping at every railroad crossing and getting out and looking to see if a train is approaching.

Hard on Chicago—or Meredith?

Now doesn't George Meredith wish he hadn't? says the Boston Herald. A straw vote in Chicago on the merits of his scheme of limited marriage discloses the fact that a large proportion of those interested in the subject of matrimony, in one way or another, never heard of Meredith.

"GIMLETS" BORED THEM.

Book of Conceited Author Lacked Popularity with the Reading Public.

Though Robert W. Chambers is a popular author, he will rarely talk about his books, says a literary exchange.

"I hate literary conceit," he said the other day. "If an architect builds a good house, his friends, on account of it, don't regard him as a god, and he doesn't regard himself as a god. The same with an engineer. If he builds a good bridge it is in the day's work, and that is all there is about it. But if a man writes a good book, why, then there must be genius in him, and before this genius he himself, as well as all the world, must bow down. Rot."

"Literary conceit is distasteful to me," Mr. Chambers said, "and I like to see it taken down. It was well taken down in the case of a New York man recently. He has written a novel, 'Gimlets,' and the public libraries have put this book on their shelves. The man called at one of the libraries to find out how his work was going with the public. He hoped to have his vanity tickled a little.

"'Gimlets' in?" he said to the librarian.

"It never was out," was the reply."

Reads Like a Miracle.

Moravia, N. Y., Dec. 12th.—(Special.)—Bordering on the miraculous is the case of Mrs. Benj. Wilson, of this place. Suffering from Sugar Diabetes, she wasted away from weighing 200 lbs. she barely tipped the scales at 130 lbs. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her. Speaking of her cure her husband says:

"My wife suffered everything from Sugar Diabetes. She was sick four years and doctored with two doctors, but received no benefit. She had so much pain all over her that she could not rest day or night. The doctor said that she could not live.

"Then an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and they helped her right from the first. Five boxes of them cured her. Dodd's Kidney Pills were a God-Sent remedy to us and we recommend them to all suffering from Kidney Disease."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure all Kidney Diseases, including Bright's Disease, and all kidney aches, including Rheumatism.

TORTURING, DISFIGURING

Hemors, Eczemas, Itchings, Inflammations, Burnings, Scallings and Chafings Cured by Cuticura.

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurements, as in pimples and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants, and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter and salt rheum—all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues, to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills are such stands proven beyond all doubt by the testimony of the civilized world.

YOU TRAVEL—OR WILL

If not today, then tomorrow. There is quality in railway travel as in everything else. Trains, trains and time are the essentials. The M. K. & T. R. R. has that quality. I want you to know it, try it and be convinced.

At this time of the year you are probably thinking about a winter trip. I'd suggest the Gulf Coast of Texas, San Antonio, Old Mexico or California, as being about as nearly perfect as climate and environment can make them. I have some very attractive literature about these resorts that I'd like to send you. May I? I'd rather talk to you, but if this is impossible, drop me a line and I'll be pleased to give you all the desired information. There are some special inducements too in the way of rates and through Katy Sleepers that I'd like you to know about. Address

Master's Sale!

BOURBON CIRCUIT COURT.

Alma Adair, &c., Plaintiffs.

Vs. Notice of Sale.

Bruce Adair, &c., Defendants.

By virtue of a judgment of sale made and entered in the above styled cause, at the November Term 1904 of the Bourbon Circuit Court, I will expose at public sale on the Public Square in Paris, Kentucky, on about the hour of 11 a.m., the following described real estate, to-wit:

Wednesday, Dec. 28th, 1904,

Beginning at a stake in Higgins avenue, 6 1/2 feet distance from the yard fence so as to include the sidewalk, corner to John W. Thomas; thence along said avenue 6 1/2 feet distance from and parallel with the yard fence 120 feet to J. Sweeney Ray's corner; thence leaving the avenue and with his line 125 feet nine inches to a stake, corner to said John W. Thomas; thence with his line 125 feet 4 inches to a stake corner to said Thomas; thence with his line 163 feet 4 inches to the beginning.

Said sale will be made upon credits of six and twelve months for equal parts of the purchase money, for which the purchaser will be required to execute bonds bearing interest from the day of sale until paid, at the rate of six per cent. per annum, having the force and effect of judgments, but if the purchaser prefers, he may pay cash in lieu of executing the bonds.

No sale will be made for less than thirty-six hundred dollars ($3,600).
This, December 5, 1904.

A Remarkable Freak of Nature.

Lucy Harris, of near Clyde's Landing, Ky., a most remarkable freak of nature, is dead. Although she lived to be seventeen years of age, she remained a baby and never weighed over twenty-five pounds. She was entirely helpless and almost lifeless. In a semi-conscious state she lay in bed day after day, uttering a low, pitiful cry. She could not feed herself nor make a sound except to cry. She appeared to recognize her mother only.

Madame Rejane at Lexington.

Mme. Gabrielle Rejane, the great French comedienne, will be seen at the Lexington opera house Wednesday, December 21. She will present her most successful play "Zaza."

Mme. Rejane's present tour of this country is the theatrical event of the year in this county. Her tour of twelve weeks is under the direction of Liebler & Co. and during it she will be seen in but ten cities. Of these, Lexington is one and it is to be expected that the representative theatre goers of the entire bluegrass region will attend the performance and welcome the great star.

Mme. Rejane is the greatest actress of Europe, possibly of the entire world, and is accompanied by her own company which she brought with her direct from Paris. The sale of seats opens Saturday, December 17, and all orders when accompanied by remittances, will receive prompt attention.

Just Received.

I have just received 500 barrels of fancy New York apples. These apples are fine for either eating or cooking and will keep for six months. See me before you buy your apples and I will save you money.

—Buyers are now paying 13 cents for turkeys on foot.

—Comrade, the fast race horse of Woodford & Buckner, died at New Orleans of lung fever.

—Ashby Leer, of Millersburg, bought of Robert Clark 15,000 pounds of tobacco at 13 cents all round.

—J. Will Clay, of Mt. Sterling, trustee for Mrs. Elizabeth Reid Prewitt, has sold to Southern parties 940 acres of land in Alabama, for $12,500.

—Charlie Penn, of this county, sold a car-load of 1,450 lb. horned fat cattle at Cincinnati for $5.25. G. C. Thompson also sold a load of 1,300 lb. cattle at same place for $4.75.

—For the sum of $1,000 Sanford C. Lyne, of Fayette county, has sold to W. R. Shields a handsome yearling bay filly by imp. Deceiver, and which will be placed in the racing stable of E. R. Thomas.

—The best sale of turkeys of which we have yet heard was made by Mrs. George M. Proctor, of near Winchester. She sold seventy-five turkeys for one hundred and eighty dollars. She got 14 1/2 cents per pound.

—At C. A. Kenney's sale, Thursday, good prices were realized. Horses sold from $40 to $100; cows, from $25 to $40; fodder, 18 cents per shock; straw, 36¢; baled hay, $10 per ton, in barn; farm implements and household goods sold well; 3,000 tobacco sticks brought $3.35 per thousand.

Startling Evidence.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds to be unequalled. A recent expression from J. T. McFarland, Bentonville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all Lung and Throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia and Grip. Guaranteed by Oberdorfer, the druggist. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c and $1.00. 1jan

Worst Of All Experiences.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newsom, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered. For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It guaranteed by Oberdorfer, the druggist.
